ANNUAL REPORT FOR THE YEAR 1970

To His Excellency Major-General Sir James Harrison, K.C.M.G.,
Governor in and over the State of South Australia:

The Council of the University of Adelaide has the honour to present to Your Excellency the following report for the year 1970:

I. INTRODUCTION

Hopes had been high in the University that 1970, being the first year of a new triennium, would greatly ease the financial constrictions which the University had endured during the preceding triennium. But publication of the Fourth Report of the Australian Universities Commission in 1969 shattered those hopes. Indeed, the financial provision for running costs of the University for 1970-72 was such it was compelled not only to abandon its plans for highly desirable new work in its teaching programme but also to reduce its allocations to various sections of its established work.

The projected establishment of a department of Slavonic Studies was abandoned; and the University was unable to proceed with the creation of an audio-visual service for teaching purposes, the development of neo-natal pediatrics within the University's Department of Child Health and of psychotherapy in the Department of Mental Health, the provision of a postgraduate diploma course in librarianship, the establishment of formal courses in anthropology and in general linguistics, and the replacement of obsolete equipment. To contribute further towards meeting the University's very limited income, staff posts that fell vacant through resignation or retirement were held unfilled for indefinite and often substantial periods, expenditure on equipment, consumable items, and building maintenance was reduced, and inadequate provision was made for the continuously rising costs of books and journals for the library and of essential services. Despite these measures the University finished the year with a deficit of $202,000.

On the capital side building costs had risen so steeply since the University had made its submission to the Australian Universities Commission in 1967 that the University had to abandon two major buildings of which the Commission had approved in order to meet the excess in cost of the highest-priority and biggest project, the expansion of the Library Complex. Work on that project proceeded satisfactorily; the Library was able to occupy a small part of it at the end of the year; and the whole project should be completed before the end of 1971. Stage I of the rebuilding of the Union Buildings (reduced by the omission of a part because of increased building costs) proceeded, and the Union Bookshop occupied its new premises early in 1971. The whole cost of the bookshop premises and more than half the cost of the remainder of the rebuilding project have been met from the Union's own resources. A small wing was added to the Mathematics Building, linking that building with the main Engineering Building.

To cope with the mushrooming responsibilities of the senior administrative staff, that arose principally through the financial stringency and the extensive internal discussions that proceeded in all sections and at all levels on the reorganization of the administrative structure and functioning of the University, the Council restored the office of Deputy Vice Chancellor, which had been filled on a part-time basis for more than three years by Professor J. R. Trevaskis, to a full-time one. Professor N. T. Flentje, a member of the University's staff since 1947 and Professor of Plant Pathology at the Waite Institute since 1964, was appointed to the full-time office and took up duty in it on September 1.

Academically the University was not somnolent. A root-and-branch revision of the medical curriculum was completed. Transition to the new curriculum began in the third term of 1970 and will be completed in 1973. The new curriculum enabled the University to increase the quota for new admissions to the medical course by 15; the resultant increase in graduates in the later years of this decade will make a useful contribution to the inauguration of the medical school at The Flinders University of South Australia and to the growing demand for medical service in the State.

Another development initiated in 1970 was the provision of a post-graduate diploma course in applied psychology, which should prove of benefit to the community in helping to staff satisfactorily the State and Commonwealth Departments of Social Services and the other bodies engaged in such work.

The number of graduates who completed their courses in 1970 was the highest for any year in the history of the University; detailed statistics belong to 1971 as the degrees were not conferred until May 1971.

2. THE COUNCIL AND SENATE

In accordance with the University Act, Professor E. S. Barnes, Miss J. Gilmore, Mr. A. H. Lendon, Mr. B. R. Macklin and Dr. J. Melville retired in November as members of Council. Only Mr. Lendon and Dr. Melville sought re-election. In November the Senate elected Mr. H. L. Beaney, Professor L. W. Cox, Professor N. T. Flentje, Dr. J. Melville and Justice R. F. Mitchell to fill the five vacancies on the Council.

Mr. W. M. Rogers was re-elected Warden of the Senate and Mr. H. E. Wesley Smith Clerk. The five vacancies on the Standing Committee of the Senate were filled by the election of Mr. R. S. Coggins, Mr. H. Lander, Miss J. A. W. Levy, Dr. E. H. Medlin and Dr. E. W. Radoslovich.

3. STAFF DISTINCTIONS

Professor D. O. Jordan was elected a Fellow of the Australian Academy of Science and appointed Chairman of the South Australian Government's Committee on Environment; Dr. F. D. Morgan and

Mr. B. Mason were appointed by the Government to the same committee; Professor J. H. Carver was elected Chairman of the Scientific Technical Sub-Committee of the United Nations Committee for the peaceful uses of outer space; Emeritus Professor R. N. Robertson was elected President of the Australian Academy of Science; Mr. J. F. Keeler was appointed a member of the Law Reform Committee of South Australia; Dr. S. G. Tomlin was awarded the degree of Doctor of Science by the University of London; Dr. J. Melville received the 1970 Farrer Medal for distinguished service to Australian agricultural science; Professor E. A. Russell was appointed to the Australian Advisory Committee on Research and Development in Education; Professor N. T. Flentje was appointed a member of the committee to advise the State Government on the allocation of funds to independent primary schools; Mr. H. N. Hoskings was elected a Fellow of the Royal Australian Institute of Architects; Professor A. A. Abbie was elected an honorary member of the Anthropological Society of Vienna and invited to address the Society in 1971; Dr. H. B. S. Womersley was awarded the Verco Medal by the Royal Society of South Australia for his work on marine algae along the South Australian coast; Professor M. F. Glaessner was appointed a member of the Australian Research Grants Committee; and Dr. J. J. Smolicz was invited to join the Central Advisory Committee of the newly established Australian Sciences Education Project.

4. DEATHS

Professor J. A. FitzHerbert, Hughes Professor of Classics from 1928 to 1957, died in April. Professor FitzHerbert was a member of the Board of Adult Education and its predecessor, the Joint Committee for Tutorial Classes, from 1931 until his death. He was Dean of the Faculty of Arts from 1947 to 1949.

Dr. G. A. Lendon, M.B., B.S. 1917, M.D. 1923, also died in April. He served the University as a clinical lecturer in Medicine from 1939 to 1954 and as first Chairman of the Board of Studies in Physiotherapy from 1945 to 1950.

5. RETIREMENTS

Professor A. A. Abbie, Elder Professor of Anatomy since 1945, and Miss E. M. Barwell, Lecturer in Physical Education since 1948, retired at the end of the year. So also did Mr. D. W. Wallis, Revenue Officer in the Administration, after 46 years' service. The Council conferred the title Professor Emeritus on Professor Abbie.

6. RESIGNATIONS

The following resignations became effective during or at the end of the year.

Mr. J. B. Buxton, Lecturer in Computing Science; Mr. J. A. Carpenter, Lecturer in Agronomy; Dr. R. B. Elliott, Senior Lecturer in Child Health, on appointment to the foundation chair of paediatrics in the University of Auckland; Mr. S. R. Fry, Teacher of French Horn; Mr. J. B. Greaves, Senior Lecturer in Law; Dr. D. J. Greenland, Reader in Agricultural Biochemistry and Soil Science, on appointment to a chair of soil science in the University of Reading; Mr. W. E.

Joyce, Senior Lecturer in Dentistry; Dr. R. Lawrence, Senior Lecturer in Physics, on appointment as reader in charge of physics in the University of the South Pacific; Dr. G. J. Leach, Lecturer in Agronomy; Mr. J. D. Male, Senior Lecturer in Engineering, on appointment as head of the school of engineering in the Tasmanian College of Advanced Education; Dr. P. W. Miles, Reader in Entomology, on appointment to the chair of zoology in the University of Zambia; Dr. P. C. Mukherjee, Senior Lecturer in History, on appointment as a professor at El Colegio de Mexico; Professor J. A. Ovenstone, Professor of Computing Science; Mr. P. D. Praetz, Senior Lecturer in Economics; Dr. D. A. Ratkowski, Senior Lecturer in charge of Biometry; Dr. D. A. M. Ryan, Senior Tutor in German; Mr. B. H. Smith, Senior Lecturer in Electrical Engineering, on appointment to the chair of electrical engineering in the University of New South Wales at Wollongong; Dr. M. C. Spencer, Senior Lecturer in French; Dr. M. J. Story, Lecturer in Chemical Engineering; Mr. A. Sykes, Lecturer in History; Mr. M. J. Trebilcock, Senior Lecturer in Law.

7. APPOINTMENTS

The following appointments were made during the year:

Professors: Professor J. C. Davies, since 1959 Professor of French in the University of New England, to the Chair of French in succession to Professor J. G. Cornell; Dr. A. G. Gough, since 1967 Reader in History in Monash University, to the chair of history left vacant by the resignation of Mr. H. Stretton; Professor J. R. Prescott, formerly Professor of Physics in the University of Calgary, to the chair of physics in succession to Dr. K. G. McCracken; Dr. I. S. de la Lande and Mr. T. G. H. Strehlow, Readers in Pharmacology and Australian Linguistics respectively, to personal chairs which lapse when their occupants vacate them.

Reader: Dr. G. M. Tallis, Statistics.

Senior Lecturers: Dr. R. H. Burnell, Child Health; Mr. B. J. Davis, Law; Mr. J. R. Herd, Dentistry; Mr. D. C. Hoffman, Surgery; Dr. D. R. Lines, Child Health; Dr. O. Mayo, Biometry; Dr. T. Moreton, Mental Health; Mr. J. B. Thacker, Commerce.

Lecturers: Mr. B. R. Abbey, Politics; Dr. A. J. Blake, Physics; Mr. P. S. Brislan, Teacher of French Horn in the Elder Conservatorium; Dr. L. R. A. Casse, Mathematics; Dr. J. A. Cooper, Geology; Mr. R. G. Dare, History; Mr. M. J. Detmold, Law; Mr. J. F. Edge, English; Mr. A. J. Fischer, Economics; Dr. M. J. Gibbard, Electrical Engineering; Dr. R. C. Hall, Human Physiology and Pharmacology; Mr. P. E. Hornsby, Psychology; Dr. B. H. Horton, Physics; Dr. B. P. Kidman, Computing Science; Dr. K. D. King, Chemical Engineering; Mr. A. L. C. Ligertwood, Law; Mr. R. K. Lindner, Economics; Dr. C. D. Matthews, Obstetrics and Gynaecology; Mr. B. K. May, Biochemistry; Mr. P. B. Mayer, Politics; Mr. A. P. Moore, Law; Mr. R. D. Murray, Dentistry; Dr. D. I. Newble, Medicine; Dr. A. L. Reeves, Philosophy; Mr. I. W. Reid, English; Dr. J. R. Roach, Chemical Engineering; Dr. A. H. Rogers, Dentistry; Mr. D. K. Round, Economics; Mr. R. J. Smales, Dentistry; Dr. D. Stankovich, German; Dr. P. Szekeres, Mathematical Physics; Mr. A. M. Taylor, English; Dr. J. C.

Wallace, Biochemistry; Dr. W. Wallace, Agricultural Biochemistry and Soil Science.

8. RESEARCH

The Research Executive Committee had $664,000 available to it for the general support of research by staff members and the training of postgraduate students. The number of postgraduate scholars receiving stipends from the Research Grant was 132; the number in 1969 was 102. The stipend paid to postgraduate students was $1,650, an increase of $50 on the 1969 stipend; and normal tenure of the awards remained the same as in previous years.

During 1970 the Australian Research Grants Committee allocated to members of staff grants totalling $488,022 in support of 85 separate projects. This total represented 11.9 per cent of the total A.R.G.C. grants to universities and research institutes in Australia. Grants to members of staff of the University of Adelaide were distributed as follows: 9 projects in the humanities and social sciences received grants totalling $31,485; 15 projects in the physical sciences $108,397; 21 projects in the chemical sciences $142,115; 35 projects in the biological sciences $185,479; 5 projects in the engineering and applied sciences $20,546. In addition grants amounting to $1,267,814 were received from sources other than the A.R.G.C.

9. BEQUESTS

The Council acknowledges with pleasure and gratitude the following gifts and bequests during the year:

An anonymous donation of $100,000 for the establishment of an educational radio station under the aegis of the Board of Adult Education; an anonymous donation of $30,000 for the Medical School; $29,732 for the Postgraduate Medical Foundation from the estate of Miss L. K. Symon; from the estate of Miss T. M. Rice, $73,139 to establish scholarships for women graduates in Classics and Modern or Medieval Languages; for the Anti-Cancer Foundation, $5,663 from the estate of Mrs. J. I. Brown; $2,000 from the estate of J. E. Baxendale to establish a scholarship in Pianoforte; $3,000 from Broken Hill Pty. Ltd.; $3,000 from North Broken Hill Ltd.; $1,000 from Electrolytic Zinc Co. of Australia Ltd.; $750 from Peko Wallsend Investments Ltd.; $750 from Western Mining Corporation Ltd.; $750 from Broken Hill South Ltd.; all towards the establishment of a Chair of Geophysics; from Esso Standard Oil (Australia) Pty. Ltd., $1,800 to provide three scholarships for honours students in Geology and $1,500 for the use of the Department of Economic Geology; from the Australian Society of Periodontology the offer of an annual prize of $40 in the dental course and from I.B.M. Australia Ltd., a $40 annual prize in Economic Statistics; from Mrs. M. A. Carter 85 original water colours for the Department of Botany; for the Law Library, a collection of books (approximate value $1,000), from the German Consulate; and from the estate of Mrs. M. Morris a collection of rare books for the Library.

10. BUILDINGS

The Mathematics Wing joining the Mathematics and Engineering Buildings was completed at the end of the year at a cost of $118,000.

The new wing provides accommodation for staff in Pure and Applied Mathematics and in Statistics.

Work continued on the Library Complex Stage II, the major project in the 1970/72 triennium building programme. Despite delays caused by industrial unrest and material shortages, by December building was advanced sufficiently to enable the Library to move books into part of the new premises. It is expected that the Complex will be finished before the end of 1971.

Reconstruction of the Union, begun in 1969, came a step nearer completion with the opening in November of the new Union Bookshop. The new building provides more space and better facilities than those available in the old bookshop.

At the Physical Education Centre, 1970 saw the completion of four squash courts to be used by both staff and students. The courts were built on stilts in order that the space beneath might be available for further development of the Centre.

11. STATUTES AND REGULATIONS

The Regulations for the Final Certificate in Law were repealed; new Regulations were approved for the Degrees of LL.B., D.Mus. and B.Sc. and the Regulations for the Degrees B.App.Sc., B.A., B.D.S., B.Sc. and M.B., B.S., were amended. Regulations for the new Diploma in Applied Psychology were approved.

Clauses in Chapter X of the Statutes were amended and new Clauses replaced Clauses 7 of Chapter X and 4 and 8 of Chapter XI. Chapter LXII of The Anna Florence Booth Prize and Chapter LXXIII of the J. E. Jenkins Scholarships were both repealed.

12. STATISTICS

Numbers of Students: The total number of students was 8,564, a decrease of 310 on the enrolment of the previous year. Higher degree enrolments, however, continued to rise, attaining a record level of 828.

The tendency towards a greater proportion of full-time enrolments was continued in 1970 when these enrolments represented 62·8 per cent of the total, or, excluding the Elder Conservatorium of Music, 65·0 per cent.

The composition of the student body is shown in the following table:

	Males	Females	Total	%
Full-time	3,938	1,437	5,375	62·8
Part-time and external	2,120	773	2,893	33·8
Elder Conservatorium	131	165	296	3·4
Total Students	6,189	2,375	8,564	100·0

Distribution into Courses:

Each student is counted once only—in the category appropriate to his principal course. The figures in brackets refer to the numbers of females included in the totals.

Overseas Students: There were 359 overseas students (including 65 women) enrolled at the University. They were distributed amongst the Faculties and Boards of Studies as follows: Agricultural Science 37, Architecture 16, Arts 22, Dentistry 19, Economics 37, Engineering 72, Law 7, Medicine 28, Music 1, Physiotherapy 2, Science 89, Social Work 4, Technology and Applied Science 25.

Of the overseas students 188 came from Malaysia, 50 from Singapore, 26 from Hong Kong, 12 each from India and Vietnam, 11 each from Pakistan and the U.K., 9 from Papua/New Guinea, 5 from New Zealand, 4 each from Burma, Canada and the U.S.A., 3 from Indonesia, 2 each from Brunei, Thailand and Holland, and 1 each from China (Taiwan), Japan, Nepal, Sarawak, Estonia, Fiji, Germany, Ghana, Greece, Kenya, Lesotho, Mauritius, Sierra Leone and West Indies.

Barr Smith Library: Holdings at the end of 1970 were as follows: Central Library 411,100 volumes; Law Library 30,300; Medical Library 62,800; Music Library 5,800 (and 11,100 pieces of music in sheets); and the Waite Agricultural Research Institute 25,800; making total holdings of 535,800 volumes.

During 1970 the Library made 199,600 loans to students, staff and graduates for use outside the Library; 128,000 from the reserve collection for use only within the Library; 14,000 to other libraries in South Australia; and 5,800 to libraries in other States. It received 1,800 loans from other libraries. Reference service to readers included the answering of 4,100 queries by the Catalogue Inquiry Service. Accessions totalled 30,300 and withdrawals numbered 447. Serial titles received exceeded 16,900. Expenditure on staff, books, journals, binding and other library purposes amounted to $733,000.

Evening Lectures: Evening lectures were given in the following subjects: Accounting (Business Management), Australian History, Australian Literature, Biology, Commercial Law, Comparative Philology, Economics I and III, Economic Development I, Education, Educational Psychology IA, English I and III, French I, Geography II, Geology I, German II, History I, II, IIIA and IIIB, Investment Planning and Business Finance, Latin I, Management Accounting, Mathematics I, Mathematics (Economics), Music I, II and III, Philosophy I, II, IIIA and IIIB, Physics I, Politics I and IIIB, Practical Teaching and Methodology A (Pre-Primary, Primary and Secondary), Psychology I, IA and II, Public Finance, Social Economics.

Department of Adult Education: Classes: The Department of Adult Education conducted 52 weekly classes in the metropolitan area—most of them at the University. All these classes were open to members of the general public, and enrolments totalled 1,462. In addition, 10 evening extension courses were offered for graduate and specialist audiences with an enrolment of 501.

Residential Courses: The W.E.A.'s residential college at Goolwa was again used for short residential courses. The following are the details:— 2 weekend courses with an enrolment of 69; 1 four-day school for the man on the land on the subject of The Economics of running a Property with an enrolment of 26; a seven-day course for councillors from Aboriginal reserves, enrolment 20; an eight-day Summer School of Art, enrolment 30; an eight-day Summer School of Drama, enrolment 25; a five-day course on biometry in biological research (in association with the Institute of Agricultural Science), enrolment 28; a four-day school of industrial and labour relations in association with ACSPA, enrolment 33.

Seminars and Conferences: Twenty-seven schools, seminars and conferences were held in Adelaide, several for specialist audiences only. The total enrolment was 2,440. New departures were a 39 day course in Accelerated English for well-educated Czech migrants and a 14-day residential course for selected writers. The specialist courses included a two-day Sentencing Institute for judges, magistrates and lawyers, a five-day course in Landscape Design for architects, a five-day course in Music Librarianship and Documentation for music librarians, a two-day course on Teaching about Society for teachers, and six sessions for music teachers. Some of the social issues taken up in seminars were: Pollution, Adelaide 2000, The Message and the Medium, The Cost of Health, Tomorrow's Housing and Social Order and the Right to Dissent.

Special Activities: The annual six-day Spring School was held at Point Turton, on the Yorke Peninsula. Subjects studied included ornithology, botany and geology. As well there were natural history courses for children. The enrolment of 73 was well below the number enrolled in previous Flinders Ranges schools. A 15-day study tour of New Zealand was made by a party of 20 Australian students in January. The party of professional and amateur geologists was led by B. Murrell, a New Zealander, working in the geology department of the University of Adelaide. The geological studies concentrated on the volcanic areas of the North Island.

Visitors: The biennial visiting scholar in comparative religion, arranged by the Charles Strong Memorial Trust, was Professor Seyyed Hossein Nasr of the University of Teheran, expert in Islamic Philosophy. Professor Nasr's audiences in lectures and seminar discussions totalled 380. With the normal Commonwealth Literary Fund grant two country lecture tours were made by Eric Rolls, the New South Wales poet and historian; and as a pioneering venture Ian Mudie, the South Australian writer, made an extensive tour of the Northern Territory.

Publications: ISSUE, the quarterly journal of social, political and cultural comment published by the Department and the W.E.A., debated the issues of Arts Festival, Aspects of Australian Literature, Man and Science and Women's Liberation in its four 1970 numbers. Regular features included political commentary, poetry, book reviews, essays and notes on the mass media, wine, the S.A. Museum, the Botanic Garden and adult education classes. Contributions were printed from writers as diverse as Eric Rolls, Roland Robinson, Ian Mudie, Dr. Neal Blewett, Louis van Eysen, The Attorney-General and The Premier. The editor is Derek Whitelock.

The department continued its policy of publishing collections of the papers given at some of its seminars. The usual format has been quarto multilith, with soft printed covers. Nineteen publications had been issued between 1965-9. Five more were produced in 1970 and two were in preparation, Pollution and The Cost of Health.

Student Health Service: The total number of individual services rendered during the year was 10,474, including 1,368 routine medical examinations of students, 1,528 casualties, 1,497 return visits from casualty service, 1,378 Poliomyelitis injections, 490 Tetanus Prophylactic injections, and 1,591 Mantoux Tests. The total does not include chest X-rays arranged by the Service at the City X-ray Unit.

Of the 1,528 casualties, 1,141 were illnesses, 256 accidents and 131 sports injuries.

Public Examinations: The public examinations in music of the Australian Music Examinations Board for South Australian candidates continued to be the responsibility of the University, which is a member of the A.M.E.B. They were held at intervals throughout the year, with 2,073 entries in Theory, 3,805 in Practice of Music, 83 in Musical Perception and 72 in Speech and Drama.

14. ACCOUNTS

An abstract, duly signed, of the income and expenditure during the year 1970 is annexed to this report. There is also a further statement showing the actual position of the University with respect to its property, funds and liabilities at the close of 1970.

Signed on behalf of the Council,

Adelaide,
13 August, 1971.

J. J. BRAY,
Chancellor.

COMMEMORATION ADDRESSES, 1971

There were four ceremonies for the conferring of degrees: on May 5 at 11 a.m. and 3 p.m. and on May 12 at 11 a.m. and 3 p.m.

In opening the first ceremony the Director of the Waite Agricultural Research Institute, Dr. J. Melville, said: Your Excellency, Mr. Deputy Chancellor, Mr. Vice-Chancellor, members of the Council and Senate of the University of Adelaide, Ladies and Gentlemen:

In welcoming this large congregation to the first of our four commemoration ceremonies, I count it a privilege to extend a special welcome to the University Visitor His Excellency the Governor of South Australia. We are pleased indeed Sir, to have you and Lady Harrison with us,

In 1837 at the beginning of the Victorian age Lord Macaulay, in his essay on Francis Bacon had this to say about Bacon's scientific philosophy: "Ask a follower of Bacon what the new philosophy has effected for mankind and his answer is ready. 'It has lengthened life; it has mitigated pain, it has extinguished diseases; it has increased the fertility of the soil; it has given new securities to the mariner; it has lighted up the night with the splendour of the day; it has accelerated motion and annihilated distance. These are but a part of its fruits and of its first fruits. For it is a philosophy which never rests, has never attained and which is never perfect. Its law is progress. A point which yesterday was invisible is its goal today and will be its starting-post tomorrow.'"

The graduate of 40 years ago in science, in medicine, in agriculture and in engineering—and I was one of them—subscribed wholeheartedly to this philosophy. Admittedly the depression of the early thirties gave us pause. Mass unemployment throughout the western world with its attendant distress and suffering, crops which were left to rot when more than half the world's population was starving, these and other related phenomena hardly justified Macaulay's lyrical prose. But we never questioned the basic soundness of the philosophy, and we took the view, that if only the economists and politicians would do their job as well as the scientists and technologists had done theirs, then Utopia was just round the corner.

But Utopia was not just round the corner; and World War II brought home to us all the frightful results of applying science and technology to the mass extermination of human beings and to the destruction of the cultural heritage built up over centuries.

The conscience of the scientist however is a remarkably resilient organ and the 20 golden years which followed the mopping up period after World War II were the best possible antidote to any lingering feelings of guilt. Because they were golden years in terms of the large sums of money provided by the Governments on both sides of the Iron Curtain for scientific research and development. The results as measured by the vastly increased volume of goods and services were highly impressive. There seemed to be no end to the demand for the products which had their genesis in the laboratory and which were developed for human use by a burgeoning technology.

All of which was very comforting for the rapidly increasing number of scientists. It is perhaps relevant here to note as one at least of the reasons why some of you are about to receive degrees that the science graduates of today were born and received much of their education during those golden years.

But during those same golden years a few far-sighted people were taking issue with Macaulay's statement that the acquisition of "new methods, new tools and new paths" would inevitably result in "the relief of man's estate". More energy from fossil fuels, more motor cars, more TV sets—the list is almost endless—all those material objects which we equate with a rising standard of living do not mean that the quality of life is thereby improved. Instead we are forced to realise that the smog which enshrouds our cities, the crude oil which defiles our beaches, the industrial effluents which poison our lakes and rivers, the desecration of the countryside by our discarded metal and plastic gadgetry, these are but some of the non-Baconian results of the application of science and technology by an acquisitive society in search of a still higher standard of living.

Our consideration of the physical sciences would be incomplete without reference to a deeper concern dating back to 1945. The atom bombs which were dropped with unprecedented destructiveness on Hiroshima and Nagasaki have been made vastly more effective during the past 25 years. All our self deceptions about the enormous benefits which atomic energy can confer on mankind are completely overshadowed (when we allow ourselves to think about it) by the knowledge that at this moment there exist in a state of instant readiness sufficient nuclear weapons to destroy every living thing on the surface of the earth.

Medicine and agriculture are the two major avenues through which biological science affects mankind, and Bacon's concept of its impact is summed up by Macaulay in these words "It has lengthened life; it has mitigated pain; it has extinguished diseases; it has increased the fertility of the soil". These effects are as apparent as are the new methods, new tools and new paths provided by the physicists and chemists, but before we start congratulating ourselves that they are totally for mankind's betterment, we need to look a little deeper.

An outstanding feature of the postwar world has been the upsurge in developed countries of a social conscience about the two thirds of the world's population which is periodically or constantly exposed to undernutrition, and constantly at risk through disease. Whereas before the war efforts to alleviate these conditions came largely from religious and charitable organisations, the postwar period has witnessed the provision of assistance on a massive scale by Governments and private foundations. With this level of financial support medical men and agriculturalists accepted with alacrity the challenges of controlling disease and increasing food production in under-developed countries.

The results of the medical exercise are almost too well known to require repetition. Through the introduction of simple measures to improve hygiene and sanitation, by prevention of disease through immunisation, by curing disease through agents such as the sulphonamides and antibiotics and by control of disease-carrying insects, death rates in a whole range of under-developed countries have been spectacularly reduced.

It has all happened as Macaulay predicted 130 years ago—the lengthening of life, the mitigation of pain and the extinguishing of diseases. Surely these are achievements which appeal to our most deep-seated instincts, and which are above criticism. Unfortunately the truth is far otherwise. These achievements are engendering a problem which is even more serious than the effect of our affluent society on the environment.

In his Essay on Population, Malthus listed pestilence as one of the major checks to the spread of misery and want through excessive population growth. We are now watching the removal of that check, we are witnessing a dramatic reduction in death rates without a corresponding reduction in birthrate, and we are witnessing in consequence a doubling of the world's already overlarge population in less than 40 years.

That frightening increase in world population would not be possible but for the complementary activity of the agricultural scientist in combating the Malthusian check of starvation. Admittedly agricultural results take longer to achieve than medical ones but they are no less spectacular. Indeed the term "Green Revolution" is now almost as familiar as is "Population Explosion", and the deputy director general of the Food and Agricultural Organisation predicted in Canberra recently that the whole Asian region might well achieve self sufficiency in cereals by the second half of this decade.

Now just to complete the picture and in fairness to the physicists and chemists, the biological scientists are also playing their part in the provision of new and potent weapons of war. Nobody knows just what effects all out biological warfare would have on the people of the world; perhaps they would be just as terrifying and a great deal more painful than all out nuclear warfare.

Here in a nutshell is the dilemma which faces every one of us. On the one hand, all the achievements and more which Macaulay would ascribe to the fulfilment of Bacon's philosophy; on the other the nuclear bomb and the population explosion. We can't turn the clock back; the products, the effects, and the underlying philosophies of science and technology are so woven into the fabric of society that we cannot disentangle them.

Today we formally mark the achievements of the 300 talented young people seated over on my left, and every member of this large congregation would wish me to convey to our new graduates their congratulations. Under the circumstances it would be only reasonable if at the same time I were to offset this pessimistic theme by propounding a neat way out of our dilemma—but I can't. I can however venture a prophecy. Just as the first seven decades of this century were the years of scientific and technological achievement, the last three will be years of scientific and technological re-assessment. That re-assessment and the actions which must flow from it are challenges to every person of goodwill; and because of the complexity of the problems they are particular challenges to those with trained intelligence—that is to graduates in every discipline and from every university in the world.

The heaviest responsibility however lies on the graduates in science and technology. Not only do they bear with us all the burdens of world citizenship, but only through their efforts is there any hope of reversing the more disastrous of the trends which I have outlined. It is my fervent hope that they succeed.

At the ceremony in the afternoon of May 5 the immediate past Chairman of the Education Committee, Professor R. F. Whelan, addressed the congregation as follows: Mr. Deputy Chancellor, Mr. Vice-Chancellor, members of the Council and Senate of the University of Adelaide, Ladies and Gentlemen:

Until a few years ago it was the custom, on occasions such as this, for the speaker, having congratulated the graduands on their success and given them fatherly advice to guide them in the outside world, to recount the achievements of the university during the previous year—the new buildings, the new courses, the increases in student and staff numbers, the new departments and faculties. Now, however, the theme has changed, and we hear of the budgetary restrictions, the imposition of quotas, the limitation of the building programme, the deterioration of the staff-student ratio—the unfortunate consequences of the financial stringency which has been imposed on all universities.

I don't believe, however, that, as imminent graduates, you are too interested in these matters. I suspect that you are more aware of a feeling of relief that the round of study and examination is past, and your backs are probably already turned on the university and its affairs and your eyes fixed on the excitement and anxieties of your future careers.

Some of you have already returned to the university to pursue advanced studies or research. There are this year enrolled in the university over 8,000 students, of whom more than 1,300 (about 16%) are postgraduate students proceeding to higher degrees by research, and of the 1,464 degrees being conferred this week, about 76 (or 5%) are higher degrees. These ratios of higher degree students to undergraduates are among the highest in Australian universities, and this is a matter of some pride as it reflects the quantity and the quality of the research activity for which the University of Adelaide is renowned. It is important to all its graduates that this should be so, because it is upon the reputation of the university for its research work that its standing in the academic world depends, and this, in turn, dictates the value of its degrees in the eyes of the community.

There is one group among the graduands that I would like to refer to particularly, and that is the group who have come to this country from neighbouring countries, particularly from South-East Asia. There are 30 of you receiving degrees today, and 33 more in the other ceremonies this week—a total of 63 this year—4% of the degrees awarded this year.

Australian universities have always been pleased to offer places to students from these areas. Their presence offers an opportunity for the people of this country and its universities to gain some knowledge of the life and problems of the citizens of countries whose future is bound economically, politically and socially with that of Australia. There is also a welcome movement in the opposite direction. I spent most of last year, with my family, living and working in Singapore and Malaya. I taught and examined in their medical schools, and visited medical centres and teaching hospitals. This was a very rewarding and enriching experience. A number of other members of staff of this university have done likewise. Professor Barnes, Professor of Mathematics, spent a year's study leave in Malaya and Thailand in 1965; Dr. Rodda of the Chemistry Department spent 4 months in Thailand in 1969; Dr. Medlin of the Physics Department taught for 6 months in the University of Singapore last year; and Dr. Fowler of the Civil Engineering Department was seconded to Singapore for 2 years. There are others of the staff who have undertaken similar activities, and many have paid short visits in the area on their way overseas on study leave in the northern hemisphere. The Vice-Chancellor and his wife undertook an extensive study tour last year, during which they visited the universities in Singapore, Malaya and Thailand, meeting many Adelaide graduates wherever they went. I would hope that many more Australians, and particularly as many of you graduands as possible, will seize opportunities, when they arise, not just to visit, but to live as temporary citizens of our neighbouring countries. Only in this way can be developed in this country a body of understanding and sympathetic concern to offset the suspicion and anxiety that tends to be directed to that which is foreign, strange and unknown. In this context, it is encouraging to note that there is an increasing awareness of the need for Asian studies in the curriculum of our schools, and although this university does not have a Department of Asian Studies, a number of courses are offered—for example, Asian History, Asian Politics, Asian Geography, Commonwealth Literature, Asian Economics, and Balinese and Indian Music.

I trust that the education and training which you, our Asian graduands, have received at this university will fit you for the role which you will be expected to play in your communities when you return home. Your parents and, in some cases, your governments, have invested heavily in you, and so, too, of course, has the Australian community.

Last year there were about 4,400 undergraduates from Asian countries distributed throughout the universities of Australia. This represents the equivalent of a university of the size of the University of Malaya, or two universities the size of that of Singapore, or that of Hong Kong, and this is provided by the tax payers of Australia.

It is true that some of the students (about a quarter) have paid fees, but the fees for courses represent but a fraction (about 16%) of the cost of provision of a place at a university. Students of medicine and of engineering are more expensive because of the length of their courses. It has been estimated to cost $30,000 in 1966 to produce each graduate in medicine. The tuition and other fees for the medical course in this university amount to about $2,500 over the 6 years—about 8% of the cost.

While it is important that we should have Asian and other overseas students joining our university communities, nevertheless, the pressure for tertiary education from the Australian public is such that the demand for places is outstripping the supply. Every university in Australia either already has been forced to impose quotas or is about to do so.

This means that there are already many fully qualified and matriculated students from Australian schools who are unable to obtain entry to the faculty of their choice and an increasing number who may be unable to enter a university at all.

There will, therefore, inevitably develop a growing pressure from the public at large to diminish the number of places made available to overseas students. This appears to be happening already here. Six years ago there were 431 overseas students enrolled in this university; this year the number is 339, a drop of over 20%, whereas the total number of university students is about the same as it was in 1964.

In the Medical Faculty, the pressure for places has resulted in a fall from 55 in 1964 to 25 this year, a drop of about 50%.

In the Faculty of Science, 1964 was a peak year with 115 overseas students enrolled. This year the number is 54, a fall of 53%.

The Faculty of Engineering, the other faculty represented here today, has held its overseas enrolments fairly steady—70 in 1964 and 79 this year.

The figures for Australian universities as a whole show a progressive fall in the number of overseas students, from a peak of 11.2% in 1962 to 8.7% in 1968, and the figure has fallen further since then.

Some possible solutions to this problem can be considered:

The overseas universities could be encouraged, by financial aid and by secondment of teachers, to expand the number of places they, themselves, can provide for their own nationals.

Exchange programmes for staff from Australian universities to swap places for a period with staff from overseas universities would provide mutual benefit to the staff members and the respective universities.

Australian universities could be encouraged to balance the shrinkage of undergraduate places by provision of more opportunities for postgraduate study by overseas students who have received their primary degrees in their own country.

A recent example of Australian aid is the grant of $14,500 which has been made to Nan Yang University in Singapore this year to support research on soil fertility and animal husbandry. This aid has been given under a scheme for Australian-Asian co-operation by which $100,000 was provided in 1970 by the Commonwealth Government, to be distributed on the advice of the Australian Vice-Chancellors' Committee, and further amounts will be disbursed in subsequent years. The countries involved so far have been Indonesia, Malaya and Singapore, and staff exchange and training courses have been planned.

Schemes such as these may help to counteract some of the pressure which the growing demand from Australian students may put on places for overseas students in our universities.

Those of you who have been able to receive your full university course, here are therefore a privileged group. I hope you have been made to feel welcome. Some of you have been here for a long time, having been to school for a year or two before coming up to the university, and I hope that you have enjoyed your Australian sojourn and your experience of the Australian way of life. Some of you will, I am sure, come back, some to do postgraduate work, some to settle as citizens. About 3,500 non-European migrants, mostly Asian, enter Australia each year as permanent citizens. Many of these (about two-thirds) are either university graduates or hold other tertiary qualifications. A recent report shows that 22% of applicants were doctors, 16% were engineers, 5% university lecturers, 5% nurses and 13% teachers. While this migration of skilled and educated people is of undoubted value to Australia, it may represent a serious loss to their home countries. One of the reasons why highly qualified people seek to return to this country is that, in many instances, they have gone back to their own countries after training here only to find that industrial and economic development has not kept pace with their qualifications, and they find either that there are no jobs available for them in their speciality, or the jobs they are offered do not require the sophistication and specialization of their skills. To some extent, therefore, we, in this country, may be to blame, if we indiscriminately offer training to overseas students without ascertaining whether the training will be appropriate to the needs of their country. This is a matter that needs careful consideration in the near future. It is vitally important that Australia maintain close educational links with her neighbouring peoples, and new and effective ways of achieving this must be sought which will be without detriment to the professional needs of the countries concerned.

Much will be expected of you overseas and Australian graduates alike by the communities in which you will live and work. You are going forward into the unknown future with your hopes high and the good wishes of your teachers, your parents and your friends.

When I graduated in medicine, a quarter of a century ago this year, a patient, who was also a close friend, and who was suffering from disseminated sclerosis and had little longer to live, gave me a book. In the flyleaf he had written some words in the shaky hand so characteristic of the disease. There were: "May you never look back with regret on the days which lie before you."

That is my wish for you. I wish you well.

The ceremony on May 12 at 11 a.m. began with the admission, ad eundem gradum, of Sir Keith Hancock to the degree of Doctor of Letters. In presenting Sir Keith to the Chancellor, the Dean of the Faculty of Arts, Dr. W. F. Hambly said: Mr. Chancellor, Mr. Vice-Chancellor and members of the Council and Senate of the University of Adelaide:

In presenting Sir Keith Hancock to receive the degree of Doctor of Letters ad eundem gradum, I cannot be insensible to the honour and the privilege which are mine.

When a University asks what shall be done to the man or woman whom she delights to honour, she is normally well aware that acceptance of what she offers will bring honour to herself as surely as to the one to whom she offers it. The case of Sir Keith is no exception to this general rule.

Certainly, there will be those who will consider Chairs in the Universities of Birmingham and Oxford, and even in the Australian National University, of greater importance than a chair in this University, to say nothing of a Directorship of Commonwealth Studies in the University of London. Nevertheless, Sir Keith's first appointment to a chair was in this University, when he was appointed Professor of Modern History in 1924.

That means that our centenary in 1974 will coincide with the jubilee of Emeritus-Professor Hancock's first professorial appointment; next year is the fiftieth anniversary of his election as Victorian Rhodes Scholar; while he will receive today a second degree from this University just 40 years since it admitted him Master of Arts.

Sir Keith's special field of study has been concerned with the British Commonwealth. His interest in the Commonwealth appears, I believe, in the proper pride which he has always shown in his own election as the first Australian to be a Fellow of All Souls. In his publications, whether he has been contributing to or editing a volume of Commonwealth history, or dealing with what may appear so small an item as Politics and the Pitcairns, or marshalling the material for a colossal portrait of Jan Smuts, the focus of the scholar's attention has been the same—the viability of the British Commonwealth as a politico-social organism.

No tribute will do justice to Sir Keith's work which fails to mention the superb style of his writing, which not only adds attraction to subject matter which has its own intrinsic appeal, but so skilfully communicates the ideas of the author, and holds the reader's attention.

Now, at the end of this long and distinguished career, Sir Keith is turning his attention to ecology, that point where the biological, physical and social sciences meet. To put off the prophet mantle and accept the role of apocalyptic visionary is often to engender fear rather than to renew hope. Yet, so long as the purpose of the enquiry is to lay bare the truth, the reactions to a writer's words are of secondary importance to the words themselves. We hope that Sir Keith may be spared to speak a word which not only Australia but the whole world needs to hear in this hour, when concern for humanity seems to be at many points at so low an ebb, and the one desire of all thoughtful people is that men may read the signs of the times before it is too late.

Following his admission to the degree, Sir Keith made the following address:

Today, I am greatly privileged to be admitted a second time to membership of the University of Adelaide. My first admission took place in 1926—nearly half a century ago. Inevitably, I find myself reflecting on the contrast between now and then.

Now, the University is large; then, it was small. To be small means to be intimate. Teachers, students and administrators of the 1920s were a closely-knit family. Among the teachers, the barriers between different Faculties were easier to cross than they are today. My friendships with men like Brailsford Robertson, the distinguished physiologist and Wood Jones, the distinguished anatomist and champion of the Aborigines, taught me as much as I learnt in the Faculty of Arts. Some of us joined together in a dining club which we named the Leonardo Society. After a meal in a private room at the Southern Cross Hotel—only 6/- per head in those days (with wine included)—we settled down to business. Each Leonardian, as his turn came, had to introduce a theme of close concern to himself, in language which his fellow Leonardians could understand.

The discussion that followed was always enjoyable and often useful. Ever since then, I have been proof against a most damnable heresy of recent times—namely, the “Two Cultures” heresy. Naturally, each of us has to work on his own particular front of intellectual endeavour; but all of us belong to one and the same culture.

In those distant days, the student population was so small that a teacher could get to know every member of his classes as an individual person. Three times a year I used to read the essays which my Pass students wrote; then I met each student in turn for personal discussion. Honours students then were so small a minority that I was able to get closely alongside them two or three times a week in small discussion classes. Some of the students used to come running with me in the Adelaide Hills. One of them was captain of the University hockey team, in which I played right half. Too often he had occasion to shout at me—“Get a move on, Hancock”.

But I'm talking too much about the good old days. From many points of view, present days are much better. The output of research is nowadays a vast improvement, both in quantity and quality, upon what it used to be. In the department of History, which is the only one I have visited recently, teaching is in many respects much better now ^{a/} than it was then. Last but not least, students now have much better opportunities than they had then. After I had been resident in Adelaide only five years, we ran into the Great Slump, when one worker in every three failed to find a job. I well remember the anxieties of young graduates in those dreadful times. You, my fellow graduates today, are mercifully delivered from those anxieties.

But you have anxieties of a different kind—anxieties as citizens, not only in your own country, but also in the civitas maxima, the emergent community of all mankind. Prominent among these anxieties is the pace of technological change and the feelings that you as individuals can do nothing to control it—the feeling that brute mechanism is taking charge, that human persons no longer count for anything. A year or two ago, some clever Americans listed 100 technological triumphs which can reasonably be expected by the year 2000. Here, at random, are a few examples, with some terse comment on each.

1. Cheap and easy desalination of salt water—that would suit Adelaide.
2. Cheap and easy individual flying platforms to take commuters to their offices—that would suit me: I've always fancied myself on a magic carpet.

3. Cheap and easy ways for a man or a woman to change his or her sex—that would not suit me.
4. Cheap and easy ways for anybody to change his colour—I'd quite like to be black for a change.
5. Cheap and easy weight control for everybody—thank you, I prefer to take exercise.
6. Cheap and easy instruments for policemen in their offices to see and hear what I am doing in my house—thank you, I prefer my domestic privacy.

Those American prognosticators of technological change did not consider any questions of priority, choice, and value. Too often they seemed to be saying: "These changes are coming, whether you like them or not". This is a half-truth. Of course, we have to live with technology: as a species, we have been living with it ever since our stone-age ancestors made the first tools. But tools are not our masters. It is for us to decide what tools we shall produce. Even more to the point, it is for us to decide what purposes these tools shall serve. To consider an example I cited just now: we have long since decided to carry far further the technology of electronics. As a consequence of that decision, we face the danger of being spied upon in our own homes. This does not mean that we shall be spied upon. If a sufficient number of Australians say No to that abuse of technological power, it won't happen here. Nevertheless, it is not at all easy, on this or any other crucial issue, to say No with decisive effect. To achieve that, two conditions have to be met. The first condition is coherent thinking about technical matters: as graduates, you and I have been trained for that. The second condition is coherent thinking about values. Here, our work in class rooms, libraries and laboratories does not take us so far. All of us have to discover for ourselves the values we stand for.

The identification and affirmation of values was easier half-a-century ago than it is now—at any rate, it appears easier in retrospect, because the values were then embedded in a firmly-rooted culture. I, for example, grew up with the Bible and the novels of Charles Dickens. Later on, I learnt Greek and read the Apology of Socrates. In these and other ways—not least the example of people I trusted—a map of values took shape within my mind, without much conscious effort on my part. Such a map is never foolproof. The attempt to steer by it in stormy seas can be agonising. Nevertheless, my map has served me well in thought and action. You—today's graduates—have your own maps of values. In making them, some of you have had the same kind of help as I had, others of you have had to do a good deal of the work by yourselves. Yet the difference, perhaps, is chiefly one of degree. However far apart our starting points may have been, all of us, sooner or later, have to work things out for ourselves. We find our compass bearings, we lose them, we look for them and find them again.

I congratulate you all on your graduation and give you my best wishes for the next stage of your journey through life.

At the ceremony at 3 p.m. on May 12, the speaker was the Vice-Chancellor (Emeritus Professor G. M. Badger) who said: Mr. Chancellor, Mr. Warden, Members of the Council and Senate of the University, Graduands, Families and Friends of Graduands, Ladies and Gentlemen:

I should like to welcome you all to this afternoon's ceremony, and to congratulate the graduands who will, in a few minutes, be admitted to degrees of the University of Adelaide. I congratulate you most warmly, and wish you every success in your endeavours. I hope your future careers will bring you personal satisfaction and benefit to mankind.

At the same time I should like to congratulate your parents, who have worried about you during your time as a student, worried about your progress, your health, your appearance, and doubtless about your "modern views" and everything else that parents worry about.

Most university students are 17-25. Parents are about 25 years older and so, by definition, are members of an older generation. All the usual tensions which exist between the younger and the older members of any community must therefore be expected in the relationship between students and parents. The problems which worry one generation are not always of central concern to succeeding generations, and the young often see problems which older people are willing to tolerate. It is therefore entirely natural for differences in views and in outlook to occur between students and their parents.

It is sometimes thought that this is a modern phenomenon, a product of the post-war era; but this is not so. Six thousand years ago an Egyptian priest carved a message on a stone tablet. "The earth is degenerate" he wrote, "children no longer obey their parents". And Socrates, in Plato's Republic, refers to customs which have fallen into disuse: customs that the young should be silent in the presence of their elders, and give up their seats to them; "not to mention", he adds, "details of personal appearance, such as the way their hair is cut and the clothes and shoes they wear".

It cannot be denied, however, that many older people in the community are more highly critical of students than used to be the case a few years ago. They do not understand what troubles the young, and unless they are prepared to make the effort they cannot communicate with them. They regard young people as undisciplined and permissive. They do not understand why so many young people dissent from the established norms of behaviour; and they do not understand why they dress and act as they do. On the other hand, most young men and women are equally impatient with members of the older generation. Both generations need to learn the art of communication; both need to be patient and tolerant, and concerned about the problems of the other; and this is especially true for students and parents.

Students are not the same as they were a generation or two ago. They are much more numerous for one thing; there are ten times as many university students in Australia today as there were just before the war. The universities themselves have become very large, and relatively impersonal; and the close association which used to exist between teacher and student has been seriously eroded. Many students today therefore feel that no one cares about them.

Moreover, as more scholarships and other awards are now available, students are being drawn from a much wider social background than used to be the case. A university education is no longer confined to the sons and daughters of relatively well-to-do parents. This is a welcome trend; but it must be admitted that it is still difficult for young people from families of modest means to enter upon university studies.

These changes in the university scene are of course important; but they do not explain why today's students are different. They do not explain the extent of the present generation gap. It is much more fundamental; today's students are different because they are the product of a different world.

We—the older generation—were brought up in a fear of poverty and unemployment; and for those of us who were teenagers in the thirties the Depression was a traumatic experience. We went to school, and perhaps to university, in the days before computers, transistors, television, antibiotics, satellites, and perhaps even before nylon stockings. Motor cars were relatively rare and it was not considered to be any special hardship to be without one. Jet aircraft had not been invented, and atmospheric pollution was relatively insignificant. Atom bombs, atomic energy, napalm and defoliants had never been thought of. In those days there was no talk of atomic fall-out, or radiation sickness, or even of pesticide residues.

Today's students, however, have grown up in an age of relative affluence—although I am the first to admit that many individual students are not affluent. They have grown up in an age of rapid technological advances, and under the threat of atomic war and pestilence. What sort of life will the future bring to the men and women who are now about to begin their careers? George Wald, a Nobel Laureate in Physiology, has said that he thinks he knows what is bothering today's students: they are members of a generation, he says, "that is by no means sure that it has a future".

The problem seems to be that the rapid advances in technology have been coupled with relatively slow progress in our knowledge of how to live in such a different world. As one young man has written: "Nearly every aspect of existing society is distorting, crushing and oppressing the human spirit which is, as a result, in a state of complete alienation from its true, free nature."

Of course, young people have always been dissatisfied with existing society. Tennyson, for example, wrote:

What shall I be at fifty
Should Nature keep me alive,
If I find the world so bitter
When I am but twenty-five?

This is true; but dissatisfaction with the world today is much deeper. The student revolt may be regarded as a protest against the present nature of the world; but, as one commentator has said, it is not so much a protest as a revulsion. Young men and women are depressed by the acquisitive nature of modern society. They are depressed by the need to conform, and by the pressures to obtain formal qualifications to enable them to live and work in this society.

They are depressed by a world in which two-thirds of the world's population live in under-developed countries where average incomes are considerably less than one-tenth those of people in the developed countries; and they are depressed by the fact that this income gap is not closing, but is actually widening at an accelerating rate. It is difficult to exaggerate the importance of this problem of poverty in under-developed countries.

Older men and women are also concerned about these things, but the young don't think we are sufficiently concerned. They think we use double standards, that we sacrifice conscience for material welfare. They think we are insincere, complacent and conformist, and that we are unwilling to listen to new and uncomfortable ideas. They say we are too ready to accept the existence of under-developed nations, and that we are too willing to accept racial injustice, poverty, human misery, war and atom bombs, with little or no complaint. They think our priorities are all wrong. They ask how it is possible to find $28,000m to put the first two men on the moon when we are unable to find a fraction of this amount to attack some of the real problems of our world? On the other hand, members of the older generation are inclined to regard the young as excessively impatient.

Students are certainly much more worried about these problems, and they are much more socially conscious, than were students of my generation. They want a better world, and they arrive at the university with great expectations; but, as universities are imperfect human establishments, these expectations are not always realised. More often than not the universities are also thought to be too complacent about the real problems of the world.

In spite of this, the time spent by a student at a university is generally important; but according to one commentator:

They are afraid that once they enter our world they will become, like us, ideologically impotent compromisers all.

Maybe this does sometimes happen; but is it inevitable? Do we have to stop being idealists? Do we have to use double standards? The answer is, of course, "no".

We do have to accept the technological world. It has introduced us to many new ways of life, and further changes must be expected in the years to come. We cannot shut our eyes and hope that all the motor cars will go away; and nobody believes that the atom bombs will be destroyed, or even that the television stations can be shut down. And if the new technological world is here to stay, we have to learn to "live" in it. We have to discover how to preserve the quality of life, and the dignity of the individual, in this new kind of world.

I have no easy solution to offer. On the contrary, I think it is a major problem which affects the future of us all. It will not disappear; and we cannot solve it by running away from it—any more than we can solve the problem of living in cities by moving to the country, despite Henry Ford's advice to the contrary.

It is a problem which will require thought and study and experiment. The universities must surely play a leading part in this study, and today's graduands are especially well equipped to participate; but all members of the community, young and old, need to be involved and the problem is not getting any easier with time. I should like to suggest, therefore, to each graduand, to each parent, and to every member of the community, that this is a problem we must all attack: How to Live in Our World.

LIST OF HIGHER DEGREE THESES LODGED IN THE BARR SMITH LIBRARY DURING 1970.

FACULTY OF AGRICULTURAL SCIENCE

Agricultural Biochemistry and Soil Science

LAM, YING, B.Sc.

The respiratory pathways in Micrococcus denitrificans. (Ph.D.)

MORIARTY, DAVID JOSEPH WULSTAN, B.Ag.Sc.

Inorganic sulphur compound oxidation in Thiobacillus concretivorus. (Ph.D.)

RADCLIFFE, BARBARA CECILE, B.A., B.S. (Oregon State).

Biochemical studies on denitrification in Pseudomonas denitrificans. (Ph.D.)

Agronomy

COCKROFT, BRUCE, M.Agr.Sc. (Melb.).

The penetration of remoulded clays by fine probes and plant roots. (Ph.D.)

LAWRENCE, PETER KORNELIS, B.Ag.Sc.

Studies in adaptation. (M.Ag.Sc.)

LOHANI, SHIVA NATH, B.Sc.(Ag.) (Agra).

The effects of natural selection on the yield and adaptation of genotypes in composite cross populations of barley. (Ph.D.)

REDDEN, ROBERT JOHN, B.Ag.Sc.

Genotype-environment interaction in wheat. (M.Ag.Sc.)

ROBINSON, FREDERICK DANIEL, B.Agr.Sc. (Melb.).

The effect of rectangularity, density, irrigation and nitrogen on the seed yield of Currie cocksfoot and Seedmaster phalaris. (M.Ag.Sc.)

Entomology

CULLEN, JOHN MALCOLM, B.A. (Camb.).

The reproduction and survival of Heliothis punctigera Wallengren in South Australia. (Ph.D.)

Plant Pathology

BANYER, ROBERT JOHN, B.Sc.

Hatching and survival of eggs of Heterodera avenae Wollenweber, 1924. (Ph.D.)

EVANS, ADRIAN ANTHONY FARRALL, B.Agr.Sc. (Melb.).

An evaluation of certain criteria used in nematode taxonomy. (Ph.D.)

LIM, WAH CHING, M.Sc. (Malaya).

Studies on the parasitism of Thanatephorus cucumeris (Frank) Donk. (Ph.D.)

MCLEAN, GEORGE DENIS, B.Sc. (Q'ld).

Studies on lettuce necrotic yellows virus. (Ph.D.)

PRICE, ISOBEL PHEBE, B.Sc.

A study of cystidia in effused Aphylophorales. (Ph.D.)

TIN, MAUNG MAUNG, B.Sc. (Agric.) (Burma).

Succession of fungi on living and moribund aerial parts of wheat plants. (M.Ag.Sc.)

YAP, ANDREW SIN JU, B.Sc. (Malaya).

Studies on the epidemiology of Puccinia antirrhini Diet. and Holw. and Marssonina panattoniana (Berl.) Magn. (M.Ag.Sc.)

Plant Physiology

CONSIDINE, JOHN ANTHONY, B.Agr.Sc. (Melb.).

Aspects of the hormonal physiology of fruit development in Vitis vinifera L. (M.Ag.Sc.)

- PHILLIPS, MARLENE LOUISE, M.Sc. (Kingston).
The response of cereal aleurone tissue to gibberellic acid. (Ph.D.)
- RAHMAN, LUTFUR, M.Sc. (Panjab).
Root growth in the young barley plant. (M.Ag.Sc.)

FACULTY OF ARCHITECTURE AND TOWN PLANNING

- EVA, DAVID COLLINGWOOD, Dip.Arch. (Liv.), Dip.T.C.P. (Manc.), A.M.T.P.I.,
A.R.A.I.A., A.R.I.B.A., M.A.P.I.
Planning for recreation in the lower reaches of the Murray. (M.T.P.)

FACULTY OF ARTS

Classics

- ROPER, BRUCE MALCOLM, B.A.
The originality of Propertius. (M.A.)

Education

- ROWELL, JACK ALAN, M.Sc., Dip.Ed. (Leeds).
Experiment and theory, their inter-relation and balance in the teaching of science, with particular reference to secondary schools in South Australia. (Ph.D.)

English Language and Literature

- REID, IAN WILLIAM, M.A. (Cant.).
The influence of the depression on Australian and New Zealand fiction, 1930-50. (Ph.D.)

German Language and Literature

- RICHTER, GUNTER WALTER, B.A.
Das historische Erzählen bei Wilhelm Raabe. (M.A.)
- ROOSE, WILLEM ADRIAAN, B.A.
The sign of man; a study of form in the historical tragedies of Andreas Gryphius. (M.A.)
- RYAN, DENISE AILEEN MARY, M.A. (Melb. and Oxford).
Moral considerations in some of C. F. Meyer's narrative work: conscience and power. (Ph.D.)

History

- HAINSWORTH, DAVID ROGER, M.A. (Syd. and Oxford).
The Sydney entrepreneurs, 1788-1821; a study in colonial enterprise with particular reference to the career of Simeon Lord. (Ph.D.)
- HIRST, JOHN BRADLEY, B.A.
Adelaide and the country, 1870-1914: a study of their social and political relationship. (Ph.D.)
- ROBERTSON, JANET MARIAN, B.A.
Liberalism in South Africa, 1948-1963. (Ph.D.)

Philosophy

- HAWKES, RAYMOND, B.A.
Foundations of knowledge. (M.A.)

Psychology

- DELIN, PETER SIMON, M.A. (Oxford).
An experimental study of mnemonic devices in verbal learning. (Ph.D.)

- STANTON, HARRY EDWARD, B.A., B.Ed. (Melb.).
The effect of manifest anxiety upon intentional and incidental learning. (M.A.)
- SOSULA, LEO, B.M.Sc.
The structure and function of the rat retina with particular reference to the acetylcholinesterase system in the inner plexiform layer. (Ph.D.)

FACULTY OF ECONOMICS

Commerce

- BOROS, PETER GEORGE, B.E.
Organisation problems in preparing and implementing P.E.R.T. scheduling in a construction company. (M.B.M.)

Economics

- PFLAUM, PETER THEO, B.Ec.
A study in family income distribution and redistribution, Australia, 1961-1962. (M.Ec.)

FACULTY OF ENGINEERING

Chemical Engineering

- ADAMS, JEREMY SORBY, B.E.
Entrainment from falling liquid films. (Ph.D.)
- KETTERIDGE, IAN BRUCE, M.E.
Selective reduction of iron in ilmenite. (Ph.D.)
- STUMP, NICHOLAS WITHRINGTON, B.App.Sc.
The chlorination of zinc oxide and zinc sulphide. (M.App.Sc.)

Electrical Engineering

- HAWRYSZKIEWYCZ, PETER, B.Sc., B.E.
Pseudo random sequences and their application to the measurement of intermodulation distortion in frequency modulated systems. (M.E.)
- SMITH, ANTHONY TERENCE, B.E.
The optimal selection of a synchronous machine model under non-synchronous operation. (M.E.)
- VU, THE BAO, B.E.
Some aspects of the problem of phase errors in paraboloidal reflector antennas. (Ph.D.)

Mechanical Engineering

- DEAN, PETER DAVID, B.E.
On the attenuation of shock-waves: an experimental study using two-dimensional profiles of various duct and chamber systems. (M.E.)
- HALE, MALCOLM ROBERT, B.E.
Hydrojet ducted propulsion system; impeller induced vibratory pressures and performance characteristics. (Ph.D.)
- HIGGINBOTTOM, GEOFFREY EDWIN, B.Sc. (Leeds).
Non-uniform torsion of thin-walled beams and shells; application to round tubes containing axial slit of any length. (M.App.Sc.)

FACULTY OF LAW

- GRIFFIN, KENNETH TREVOR, LL.B.
The structure and constitutional validity of the Income tax assessment act, 1936-1968. (LL.M.)

FACULTY OF MEDICINE

Human Physiology and Pharmacology

LUMBERS, EUGENIE RUTH, M.B., B.S.

The quantitation and significance of renin in biological fluids. (M.D.)

Mental Health

COURT, JOHN HUGH, B.A. (R'dg.).

Psychomotor concomitants of psychological disorder. (Ph.D.)

Obstetrics and Gynaecology

SYMONDS, EDWIN MALCOLM, M.B., B.S.

Foetal acid-base status and foetal electrocardiography. (M.D.)

FACULTY OF SCIENCE

Biochemistry and General Physiology

FARRANT, ROBERT KENNION, M.Sc.

Studies on staphylococcal typing phages. (M.Sc.)

IRVING, ELIZABETH ANNE, M.Sc.

Studies on σ -aminolaevulinic acid synthetase induced in guinea pig liver by 3,5-dicarbethoxy-1, 4-dihydrocollidine. (Ph.D.)

MAY, BRIAN KENNETH, B.Sc.

Studies on Bacillus subtilis extracellular enzymes. (Ph.D.)

NIELSEN, JAN, B.Sc.

Aspects of the mechanism of sheep kidney pyruvate carboxylase. (Ph.D.)

PFUELLER, SHARRON LOUISE, B.Sc. (Syd.).

Studies on Bacillus stearothermophilus α -amylase. (Ph.D.)

STOCK, BERESFORD HANNAM, B.Sc.

The chemistry and metabolism of tetrahydronicotinamide and its nucleotide derivatives. (Ph.D.)

WILKES, ALFRED JOHN, B.Sc.

The nitrate-reducing system of Bacillus stearothermophilus. (Ph.D.)

Botany

BALDOCK, ROBERT NEIL, B.Sc.

Studies on Bornetia and the Griffithsieae group of the Ceramiaceae (Rhodophyta). (M.Sc.)

GORDON, ELIZABETH MARY, B.Sc.

Studies on Wrangelieae, Sphondylothamnieae and Spermothamnieae (Ceramiales, Rhodophyta). (Ph.D.)

WEST, KEITH ROBERT, B.Sc.

Photophosphorylation and ion transport in green plant cells. (Ph.D.)

WOELKERLING, WILLIAM JAMES, M.S. (Wis.).

Studies on the Audouinella complex (Rhodophyta) in Southern Australia. (Ph.D.)

Computing Science

MACASKILL, JOHN LEONARD CAMERON, B.Sc. (Eng.) (Lond.).

The application of computers to the balancing and sequencing of assembly lines. (Ph.D.)

Genetics

LEACH, CAROLYN RUBY, B.Sc.

Genetical studies in three Oxalis species. (M.Sc.)

Geology and Mineralogy

- WALTER, MALCOLM ROSS, B.Sc.
Stromatolites and the biostratigraphy of the Australian Precambrian, with appendices on pseudo fossils from Australian Precambrian iron-formation and greywacke. (Ph.D.)

Mathematical Physics

- BRACKEN, ANTHONY JOHN, B.Sc.
Group-theoretical applications in a tri-local model for baryons. (Ph.D.)
- BROOKER, PETER IAN, B.Sc.
Problem in kinetic theory. (Ph.D.)

Mathematics

- NELSON, CHRISTOPHER EASTICK, B.Sc.
Refinements of some extreme forms. (M.Sc.)
- SALZBORN, FRANZ JOHANN, Drs. (Utrecht).
Mathematical models for the optimum scheduling of commuter trains. (Ph.D.)
- TOMLIN, JOHN ANTHONY, B.Sc.
Mathematical programming models for traffic network problems. (Ph.D.)

The above expenditure does not include expenditure for research and educational purposes of Grants received from Outside Sources totalling $1,275,421 detailed on pages 1134-1153 inclusive of these accounts.

W. MEIKLEJOHN, Bursar.

We report that we have duly audited the various Books of Account and other records relating to the Income and Expenditure of The University of Adelaide, in respect of the year which ended on the 31st day of December, 1970, and do certify the above statement to be a correct abstract of such Income and Expenditure during the period named.

We further certify that in terms of sections 3 and 7 of the States Grants (Universities) Act 1969-1970 in relation to the year 1970, the above financial statement correctly sets out the Fees and State Grants received by The University of Adelaide, that the Commonwealth Grant for recurrent purposes paid to the University in that year has been applied for expenditure (not being capital expenditure as defined in the Act) on University purposes and that the grant of $300,000 (of which the Commonwealth and the State each contributed $150,000) has been applied for expenditure on special research purposes.

THE SENATE

Until 29 April, 1971 the Senate of the University consisted of all graduates admitted to a degree of Master or Doctor and of all other graduates of the University of three years' standing. A graduate of another University admitted to a degree in The University of Adelaide reckoned his standing from the date of his graduation in such other University.

On 29 April, 1971 a new act, "The University of Adelaide Act, 1971" came into force. Under it, the Senate consists of all graduates of the University; all persons in the full-time employment of the University who are graduates of other Universities recognised by the University or who have attained at other institutions of higher learning qualifications considered by the University to be of a status equivalent to that of a degree of the University; and all postgraduate students.

PAST AND PRESENT GRADUATES
