Sappho & Phao
by John Lyly

NOTE: The prose comedy Sappho and Phao, normally considered to be John Lyly's second play, was performed at the English court on 3rd March, 1584; the character of Sappho, which bears little relation to that of her namesake, the Greek poetess, is clearly designed as a compliment to Queen Elizabeth. It is one of the plays specially written for performance by the professional company of boy actors at the Blackfriar's Theatre.
