WILD WEST FRONTIER LIFE.

INTRODUCING COWBOYS AND INDIANS.

SCENE 1.—HUNTER'S CABIN—Scene from real life in Rocky Mountains, where the hunter returns loaded with game after his successful trip. He is attacked by Indians, killed, scalped, and cabin burnt.

SCENE 2.—Picking up objects from the ground, which is just as necessary to learn as riding, as oft-times the Cowboys inlassooing an animal lose their ropes. They then have to gallop after the animal and pick up the end of the lasso.

SCENE 3.—EMIGRANT TRAIN—Showing the peril of the early pioneers in crossing the American Deserts, where they have to contend against horse thieves, road agents, and Indians—introducing the chase for a bride, adapted from the Indians in early history, and the celebrated Sioux Indians Sun Dance around the fire stake—Fight with Cowboys and Indians, introducing a sensational knife fight between the Indian Chief and Cowboy.

SCENE 4.—The Cowboys will illustrate the Hanging of a Horse Thief, or Lynch Law on the Frontier of Texas.

SCENE 5.—LASSOOING—Showing the mode of catching horses or cattle by the neck or legs for branding or other purposes.

To conclude with the highly diverting spectacular after-piece, entitled
