The following cablegram was received in Adelaide yesterday from the Secretary of State for the Colonies (Mr. Bonar Law):—"The King commands me to convey through you an expression of the deep regret with which he has learnt of the great loss suffered by South Australia in the death of Sir Samuel Way. His Majesty the King is confident that his conspicuous devotion to the duties of his high office and to the interests of Australia will long be remembered by those who had the privilege of knowing him and of appreciating his sterling qualities.—Bonar Law."

CABLEGRAM FROM BRITISH GOVERNMENT.

The following is the text of a cablegram received from the Secretary of State for the Colonies (Mr. Bonar Law), dated January 10, and addressed to His Excellency the Governor (Sir Henry Galway):—"I have received with great regret the news of the death of Sir Samuel Way, who for nearly 40 years has filled the office of Chief Justice of South Australia with great ability and distinction. His wide interests and genial personality had secured for him the very special esteem and affectionate regard of his fellow-citizens, and I desire to express my sincere sympathy with his relations and many friends, and with the State which mourns his loss.—Bonar Law."

FURTHER TRIBUTES.

—Governor-General's Sympathy.—

His Excellency the Governor-General (Sir Ronald Munro-Ferguson) has sent the following telegram to His Excellency the State Governor (Sir Henry Galway):—"I sincerely sympathize with you and South Australia in the loss of Sir Samuel Way. His long life, devoted throughout with conspicuous success to the public service, leaves us a great example, which will long survive the day of mourning.—R. M. Ferguson."

—Sir Henry and Lady Galway.—

From His Excellency the Governor (Sir Henry Galway):—"It is with the most profound regret that I have heard of the death of the Chief Justice, South Australia's most distinguished son. May I express to you my heartfelt sympathy in the great loss which you have sustained. South Australia particularly, and the world generally, will be the poorer by his death. To me and to many of my predecessors in office he was ever a personal friend and trusty adviser. I feel his death very keenly, and his place will be more than difficult to fill. Sir Samuel died full of years and honours, and his left behind him a brilliant record of public service and usefulness which will always remain as the epitaph he would have chosen. He died in harness, and set a splendid example to us all of devotion to duty and clean living. The number of his friends who mourn their loss to-day is legion."

From Lady Galway:—"I send you my most heartfelt sympathy and sincere condolences. The life of the Chief Justice has been an example to generations of young men, and in these terrible times they have proved themselves worthy of his leadership. I feel sure that he would have chosen to go to his rest as he did, exercising to the last a noble and manly influence."

Mr. J. Gumley (Grand Master, L.O.L. We admired him throughout his public career as a man who at all times lived up to the excellent principles which had been characteristic of his life, viz., to love mercy, practise charity, and do justice to all mankind—thereby gaining the high opinions of his fellow-citizens. The record service given by him to the State will ever live in the annals of this institution as unique—for his fearless administration of the law, his earnest and sincere sympathy with the sick and suffering, and his ability as a legal luminary of the very highest order; in fact, to have gained the title of being one of the most learned men in the law in Australasia is a title of which those connected with him, as well as the State, may justly be proud. Being a Protestant organization, we also deplore his loss as a fearless Protestant and a devout Bible student, who at all times exhibited that wonderful fortitude which has characterized his life by doing unto others as he would they should do unto him. As an institution we recognise in his death the State, as well as the Commonwealth, has suffered an irreparable loss, and our deepest sympathy goes out to his relatives and the various bodies with which he was connected.”
