UNIVERSITY AND INDUSTRIAL LIFE.

A communication was recently received by the Chamber of Manufactures from the University Graduates' Association inviting the co-operation of manufacturers for the purpose of securing more efficiency in practical life the benefits of University training. Subsequently proposals were laid before the chamber indicating the manner in which a beginning could be made to secure the desired result. The proposals were, briefly, as follow:—1. Manufacturers were invited to forward from time to time particulars of positions vacant in their businesses for which men of University training would be required. A notification should be accompanied by a concise statement under the headings of:—Nature of the duties to be performed, remuneration offered, prospects of advancement, general qualifications required, and special knowledge or training required. 2. The chamber was invited to transmit periodically an expression of opinion as to the most important problems affecting the industries of South Australia in which the University might assist in the attainment of a solution. The Chamber was further invited to transmit to the Graduates' Association any suggestions concerning measures by which the work or teaching of the University may be rendered more effective, either as to the bearing of such teaching upon specific practical affairs or as to the general suitability of the University curricula. The Under Graduates' Association agreed to undertake to act as medium for the transmission of approved information and suggestions to the University authorities, and to endeavour to obtain suitable men for the positions offering. While the scope of usefulness of the proposed co-operation between the Graduates' Association and the chamber might be limited at the present stage, it is considered that it might develop as experience is gained. The council of the chamber has, therefore, asked members to co-operate and forward any information they might desire to submit.
