Professor Kelly, of the Adelaide University, has received from Dr. Wilson, of Melbourne, a circular in reference to a scholarship for Australian students in connection with Trinity College, Oxford, which reads thus:—"An examination will be held simultaneously in Sydney and Melbourne beginning on Tuesday, April 11, for the purpose of electing to a scholarship at the above college, of the annual value of £80, tenable for four years. Candidates must not have exceeded the age of 23 years on the first day of examination. Age will, however, be taken into account in awarding the scholarship. This scholarship is open to all Australian and Tasmanian students. The subjects of examination will be Latin (prose and verse), Greek (prose and verse), Greek and Latin translations (prose and verse), English essay, history questions, and general questions. There will be an alternative French and German translation paper for candidates who do not offer Greek or Latin verse. There will also be optional mathematical papers. Additional information can be obtained on application to Professor Scott, of the University, or Mr. Weigall, headmaster of the Grammar School, in Sydney, or to Professor Tucker, of the University, or Dr. Wilson, headmaster of the Grammar School, in Melbourne. Intending candidates should send in their names to one of the above before Monday, March 31. A fee of 10s. will be chargeable to cover local expenses."

The popularity of the public examinations in both the theory and practice of music has induced the University Council to provide an advanced course, under which students may attend lectures, and upon passing the necessary examination they will be entitled to receive a certificate. This should prove eminently useful to teachers. The work performed by students in the advanced course will help them if they eventually decide to study for the degree, as by completing the lectures of the advanced course they also do the work required by first year students for the degree of bachelor of music. But independently of the degree the course now provided by the University is a step higher than the ordinary public examinations, and one that should meet with liberal support.

Dr. F. W. Pennefather, Professor of Laws at the University of Adelaide, has been given 12 months' leave of absence from the commencement of the year, and will leave on Wednesday for England, his trip being purely of a private character. During Dr. Pennefather's absence Mr. G. J. R. Murray will take his position at the University.

UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF MUSIC.—Since the institution of the public examinations in music the popularity of the school has greatly increased, and the University authorities now provide an advanced course of public examinations. This will probably be well supported; for although distinct examinations they embrace a portion of the curriculum required for the degree of Bachelor of Music, so that the students who pass the examinations of the advanced course not only receive a certificate that should be of great assistance to teachers, but have the satisfaction of knowing that should they afterwards be able to proceed to the degree their course of study under the advanced course will be credited to them.

ADELAIDE : TUESDAY, MARCH 14, 1893.

PROFESSOR PENNEFATHER.—Mr. F. W. Pennefather, LL.D., B.A., Professor of Laws at the Adelaide University, has, we understand, been granted twelve months' leave of absence from the beginning of the year. He is about to take a trip to England, and during his absence his position at the University will be taken by Mr. G. J. R. Murray. Professor Pennefather's trip is solely of a private nature, and it is understood that he will resume his duties early next year. He leaves by Wednesday's boat.
