Udny Yule,

am enclosing herewith the triple-barrelled paper on the log distribution. As you may judge, most of the credit should go to Lams.

The form is likely to be useful in a great many miscellaneous locations, not because it fits well in all cases, neither word frequencies I fancy nor generic sizes in most groups, but because it fits well in some, and therefore affords a standard of comparison with others, a standard deviation from which has at least nothing to do with mere "richness in genera" or size of vocabulary.

Table 10 was a teasing function to tabulate.

Yours sincerely,
