

54 Braid Road,
Edinburgh 10.

June 1, 1937.

Dear Fisher,

I am sorry that immersion in end-of-session routine has prevented me from replying earlier to your last letter. I should like very much to write a short account of Sheppard's work, much of which, on the side of finite differences, was in my line of interest. Perhaps if I send you a draft ms. as soon as I can you will see whether it is suitable.

Yours sincerely,
A. C. Aitken.

June 3, 1937

Dear Aitken,

Thanks for your letter. I am afraid I must ask for your note on Sheppard just as soon as you can manage it, as the number ought soon to be sent to the printer. I shall be very glad to have it.

Yours sincerely,