

16th April, 1957.

My dear Barbacki,

I enclose a short list of hotels in London. Of course they are all abominably expensive <sup>in</sup> for these days, but perhaps this will enable you to make a choice by the aid of its map.

It is delightful to think of you being in England again, and of course I very much hope that you will be visiting Cambridge. There is a certain amount of pasture plant work also in the Plant Breeding Station here.

Looking forward to seeing you. Perhaps you can choose a day to come down and have lunch.
Yours sincerely,

Enc.
