C My dear Chester:

O Thanks for your letter of November 12. The plans Robbins sends me is excellent, only I cannot tell him where or when I shall arrive at New York without discussing it with the Travel Agency. I could wish that people like himself would have some of this local detail looked up for me in advance, so that I could reply definitely and at once.

P For the two lectures at Yale you might like
(a) Probability: its semantics and logic
(b) Inferences from controlled and uncontrolled material.

I would if it would suit the Lockwood lecture to give

The Theory of Junction in Inbreeding.

P For Christmas I should greatly enjoy a theatre party for just the three of us. Also, I am looking forward to hearing about your book. It would be worthwhile sending a little, including what you want to discuss, which I would probably save time by seeing in advance.

Y Sincerely yours,

Ronald A. Fisher
