

24 February 1943

Dear Denis,

As you know, I have been approached about the Professorship of Genetics at Cambridge. Knowing at present very little about the situation there, I have set out a memorandum which I enclose, in which you will see ~~say~~ something about Taylor's Unit at the School of Pathology. I do not yet know what to propose about them, either now or on the outbreak of peace, and should very much value your advice as to the kind or kinds of relationship with the Department of Genetics and the University of Cambridge which could ~~be~~ usefully be proposed.

P.T.O.

I should also be very grateful if you had anything to suggest on the rest of the memorandum.

Yours sincerely,
