Dear Dr Dufrenoy,

I have had from time to time a great many applications for the reproduction of tables from "Statistical Methods", so that, by analogy with past cases, I know what conditions would be satisfactory to my publishers as well as to myself. These are:-

1. That acknowledgement of the origin of the table, giving author and publisher, should appear on the page on which the table is reproduced and in the preface, or foreword, to the volume.

2. That copies of the publication be sent to me, and to my publishers, Messrs Oliver and Boyd, Tweeddale Court, Edinburgh, Scotland.

3. That the same should be done with any subsequent editions of your work which may appear.

I hope that these conditions will not seem to you troublesome or onerous. I, myself, greatly object to the claims that have sometimes been made in the past to copyright in scientific material and even in the tabulated values of mathematical functions, and

I have endeavoured to find a basis on which such claims may be waived without danger of abuse or injustice.

Please do not hesitate to make use, on the same conditions, of any other tables which may seem useful.

Yours sincerely,
