

TELEPHONE 47726.

DEPARTMENT OF ZOOLOGY AND COMPARATIVE ANATOMY, UNIVERSITY MUSEUM, OXFORD.

January 15th.

My dear Ron,

In the December number of Evolution for 1948 (Vol. 2, No. 4, pp. 279-94), Sewall Wright defends himself against our attack in the dominula paper, and in turn attacks us for our interpretation of him. I don't know if you think this needs any answer. In general, I tend not to answer criticism, though of course there must be exceptions. Another course is to introduce relevant comments when one publishes a further paper.

Have you seen Wright's article, and what do you think appropriate in this instance? I assume you either take the journal or have easy access to it. If not, I could send you the number with pleasure.

Yours truly,
Henry