

3 January 1944

My dear Henry,

I had not realised that I had written twice, but I suppose that sort of automatism, or memory-blackout, is a fairly normal consequence of being shaken. Thanks for your letters, which I believe Nicolette also greatly appreciated. I am looking forward to our primrose trip.

Yours sincerely,