

DEPARTMENT OF ZOOLOGY AND COMPARATIVE ANATOMY, UNIVERSITY MUSEUM, OXFORD.Monday.

June 1943

My dear Ron,

After ringing you up I wondered if after all I had been making unnecessary difficulties; for I am so particularly looking forward to seeing you, and a delay is just what I should not have wanted. I had no idea that next week-end was Bank Holiday, and have just been warned so strongly against attempting to travel then; particularly on the Saturday afternoon - for I cannot leave in the morning. However, if the week and following really is equally good for you, that may be the better course. It is so good of you not to mind changing and to leave the following one open for me.

The mother's Saliva is going very well.
The routine of taking it - works perfectly, and now I have the Second Hospital as well. How strange that about one woman in four (of that class) has never heard the word "Saliva" - one has to say "Spit, please"!

Looking forward so much to seeing you,

Ever yours,

Henry