

16th November, 1955.

My dear Henry,

I shall look forward to meeting you at the Annual Meeting or the Dinner that same evening. I am afraid poor Rob cannot, of course, be at the Dinner this year, and I shall have Arthur Mourant as my guest. Would you care to arrange to be at the same table? As I ^{am} a guest I am presuming that I shall not, as a medallist, be forcibly removed to some special menagerie, and I have taken the precaution also of telling Salisbury that I shall make no speech, so I hope to be secure from all such molestation.

Sincerely yours,
