

OXFORD
BB147.

5, APSLEY ROAD,
OXFORD.

June 11th. 1938.

My dear Fisher,

Your letter has reached me today after, apparently, many forwardings. I moved to this address about 18 months ago, but why they should have had so much difficulty in finding me, I cannot imagine - But, on second thoughts, I believe that the flats at Woodstock Close have changed hands since I left, so presumably the present people there know nothing about me.

Thank you very much for all the care and trouble you have taken to make the explwith introducing Sibs so extremely clear.
I have been very interested indeed in your analysis, which succeeds in explaining the matter to anyone like myself with none but the average mathematical knowledge. — It is really very kind of you: so few people would have bothered, and it is such a help to me.

Should the book meet a second edition, I will of course for your help in the matter if you please; for I should be very grateful if you would look at the conditions I make.

Yours sincerely,
L. B. Ford