

DEPARTMENT OF ZOOLOGY AND COMPARATIVE ANATOMY, UNIVERSITY MUSEUM, OXFORD.

March 24th 1937.

My dear Fisher,

Thank you for the reprints. Naturally it is a special pleasure to see published your grand analysis of abundance and variability in birds' eggs.
The conclusions you draw are of great importance and — if I may say so — put with particular facility and clearness.

It is a great satisfaction to see the moth paper followed with one such as this.

Yours sincerely,
E. B. Ford