

24 May 1934.

Dear Ford,

I want to arrange for you to visit my poultry experiment at Harpenden as soon as you can find a convenient day. Some of the factors are turning out splendidly, showing most interesting differences in the chick stage. As I do not know what they will look like later or whether they will live, and cannot take the risk of sacrificing homozygous material this year, I am particularly anxious that you and others should see them as they now are.

Yours sincerely,