

5th. June 1950.

My dear Henry,

Thanks for your letter. Yes, I was indeed a little concerned about your health. I am just writing a quick reply to say that for the best way for Hogwood to consult me would be to come and stay for a couple of nights in Cambridge, when he can make it, sending perhaps his typescript a day or two in advance, so that if I have time I can look at it first.

I do hope you will remind Michie also to do this, as the situation in mouse genetics changes so rapidly that it is easy to get out of touch with another department.

Sincerely yours,
