Dear Dr. Fisher:

I am sorry to learn that you have been ill and hope that by this time you have completely recovered. I have wondered a little at times about the absence of a reply, but my attention has been so fully occupied with other matters that I have not given it much thought.

I am very much obliged to you for reviewing my manuscript. Inasmuch as you say nothing about some of the questions asked in my last letter, I conclude that you found nothing amiss with those statements in the manuscript about which I asked you.

I am forwarding your check with this letter in order that it may not be longer delayed by my absence from the office. However, I wish to write you a little further, which I will do on my return.

Sincerely,

H. D. Goodale
