Dear Professor Fisher,

I had the honour of being introduced to you last year while I was learning a little of the subject of blood groups in man from Dr R.R. Race and Dr A.E. Howant in the Lister Institute.

If the University approves I am to work here on blood groups in animals and intend to begin on cattle. Dr Coombs of the Department of Pathology is teaching me the techniques and theory of serology.

I hope to have understood enough of the elementary principles of genetics by the beginning of the next academic year to justify my asking permission to attend lectures in your Department.

Since you expressed interest in animal blood groups I thought that you might perhaps, care to know that although I am ill-equipped for so difficult a subject at least a small start is being made. And I have felt your influence so strongly during the last year that I should like to thank you for so much of the pleasure that this fascinating subject has given me.

I am, Sir,

Yours sincerely

J. H. Hall.
