Dear Mr Harrod,

I had a shot at the Times again with a slightly shortened version, following your advice on the paragraph on propoganda; but they won't have it at any price. I am sorry, but not scandalised; they probably know their own business best.

Do you think any heav~~y~~ish journal, like the 19th Century could bear something of the sort, if set out in due form, and, if so, would it do the least good?

Yours sincerely,
