

March 24, 1938

Dear Jeffreys,

I have tried circularising your letter in my Laboratory with a view to discovering your reference to where I said that the variation of observations from a formula is just as essential a part of the law as the formula itself. Like you, I am quite sure that I have said so and constantly impressed it in lectures, but cannot lay my finger on it in print.

Yours sincerely,