

28 July 1944

Dear Medgar,

I have just enquired about G line, and find that at the moment there are only bucks adolescent, although there two does pregnant, which will probably renew the supply of females.

It would be very pleasant if you were able to make me a visit here, but as trains are so bad and you may find yourself pressed for time it may be worth bearing in mind the possibility of my consigning the material to you by passenger train. In that case I should 'phone or wire on despatch to confirm the time of arrival at Oxford.

I will have a short account of the practical regime drawn up, based on our experience.

Yours sincerely,