Dear Dr. Murphy:

It is exceedingly kind of you to write and offer advice to the stranger within your gates. I do know Gosset well and have promised to stay a day or two with him on the occasion. I anticipate that he will have a great deal to show and discuss with me, for it is nearly 25 years since I was in Dublin, passing through, as a boy, on fishing holidays.

I am much looking forward to meeting you and your colleagues and to addressing the Royal Dublin Society.

Yours sincerely,
