Dear Mr Nair,

Thanks for your letter. I am afraid I had not remembered that you were thinking of taking a period of post-graduate work abroad.

In my Department here I have had to start from nothing, for Punnett had retired some years before I came. It has also been very difficult to get much done, for building has been impossible during the war. Consequently you would find much better equipment in the United States and also, what matters somewhat, a much wider field of genetic study, owing to the many Universities accessible by visit at which genetical research is well established. Perhaps you would manage to visit me for a short time on your way back or forth.

Yours sincerely,
