

17th November, 1953.

My dear Rob,

I do not think you have yet received a formal invitation from me to deliver a University lecture on Thursday, February 18th. This is meant to repair the deficiency. There is a fee of twenty-five pounds, and it is about time to have a title so that bills and notices can be appropriately printed.

On a matter of notation, you use I think a and b with Lewis, Lutheran, Duffy and Kidd, and of these Lewis, Duffy and Kidd have, at some time or other, enjoyed a second testing fluid. Do you use a and b for Kell, or do you speak of Kell - Cellano +, or something of that sort? I ask all this just so that I do not mislead my class too much as to current usage.

Sincerely yours,
