

13th July, 1953.

My dear Rob,

I have just seen your letter of July 11th. Actually on the 16th I shall not be much available save in the morning and with luck at lunch time, as I have to be at the Royal Society Dining Club for their annual Election Meeting. If Thursday is much better for you than Wednesday, you might manage an early visit in the morning and lunch with me at one of the pubs.

I am afraid I had not followed the progress of your Rh-P.T.C. linkage which, if I understand your pencil sheet, has bounded forward to super-significance just this year. Of course I am sad at the loss of one of the linkage groups, but it will be nice next time an alleged Rhesus cross-over occurs to see which way the tasting genes segregate.

Love to Ruth.

Yours sincerely,
