My dear Race,

It would be nice if somehow the Society could make an occasion for Tage Kemp, as he certainly has done a great deal for human genetics. The first word of his title is wretched; like many continental writers he seems to be using polymerias for cumulative factors, but there is no helping this.

There need to be a Cardova Cafe nearly opposite Burlington House, and if we had a break people could get tea there or elsewhere. Are there not people who will cater for teas with the permission of the Society, to let the meeting have tea on the spot?

I have no prejudice about the day of the week for the Spring and Summer meetings.

Yours sincerely,

Would you care to put one down for the Feb. meeting, with a note on linkage data & its compilation.
