Sir H. Rolleston Bart.
Martins,
Scotlands Lane,
Haslemere,

Dear Sir, Humphry,

I am a little puzzled by your letter, I can fully understand that your time is so full that you have little to spare, and I regret that this should prevent you from discussing with me matters of common interest.

Your first paragraph, however, suggests the view that there would be some degree of impropriety in you, as President, discussing the affairs of the Society with me, as Vice President, except at a Council meeting of the Society. I cannot think that this view would be held in any other Society with which I am connected.

Yours sincerely,
