

2nd March 1935.

Dear Professor Weinberg,

I have your letter of February 27th and am sending you a copy of my letter of July 1930 of which you tell me you have lost one page.

I am also sending you a paper which I hope will be of interest to you, namely a discussion of the probans method and the sibmethod in relation to the procedure of ascertaining by which the data have been obtained. The treatment is not quite complete, but I think it puts the advantages of the sib method in a clear light.

Yours sincerely,

Prof. W. Weinberg
